Officers at a West Midlands Police Station are under investigation for filling in a witness statement on behalf of a dog. The officers had become exasperated after the Crown Prosecution Service repeatedly asked for a statement from "PC Peach", despite being told that Peach was a police dog. In the end, they filled in the form on his behalf, signed it with a paw print and pinned it up in the station. But when a picture of the form (above) started doing the rounds on Twitter, CPS officials reportedly complained that they were being publicly mocked. The force's professional standards department is considering the case.
